

Claims on Construction Projects- Avoidance and Success Seminar

A Practical approach to understanding claims management for changes, delays and impact, and loss of anticipated profits.

Friday, September 26, 2008 (Vancouver/Lower Mainland)

Never before have construction schedules been so vulnerable to delay. Never before have the costs associated with delays been so high. Material price increases, labour price increases, and missed business opportunities are just some of the real implications to general and sub trade contractors' bottom line when a project falls behind schedule. This practical seminar is aimed at educating owners, consultants, contractors and trades on how to properly handle construction project delay claims.

Topics covered:

- ❖ How to identify impact and delay costs
- ❖ How to contractually allocate the risks
- ❖ Contract administration and avoidance of disputes
- ❖ Preparing the claim and response
- ❖ Loss of productivity and acceleration disputes
- ❖ How to avoid the Courtroom

Speakers:

Derek Brindle

Derek is counsel with Singleton Urquhart LLP, a diversified Construction Law firm, and has over 30 years of experience representing owners, consultants, contractors and trades in all kinds of construction disputes. He is a Governor of the Canadian College of Construction Lawyers, co-editor of British Columbia CLE Builders Lien Practice Manual, and an author and frequent presenter to the Construction Industry on successful contracting strategies and cost effective dispute resolution.

Roger Holland

Roger, a partner with Singleton Urquhart LLP, has 15 years experience as a solicitor acting on behalf of various clients in the construction industry. He regularly acts for developers, trades and design consultants with respect to negotiating and drafting contracts, minimizing risks and in terms of business planning.
